

ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE AND VIRGINIA ADVERTISER.

LOCAL NEWS.

THE LATHAM MEETING.—A large crowd of persons gathered together in the Market place last night in response to the invitation of ex-Mayor Hugh Latham, among whom were many citizens of Irish descent. Mr. Latham addressed the assembly from one of the upper stalls for about three quarters of an hour, and said he had requested the attendance to explain his position before the people, and to speak of a matter between himself and another person. If any of the other candidates were present who desired to address the meeting he would give them an opportunity to do so. It might have been observed that there was one peculiarity about the call for the meeting, and that was the request that his Irish fellow-citizens might be present to-night, as he wished to speak to them particularly, and this he would proceed to do in a few moments. It had been asserted by some that there were no issues upon which a discussion could be based, but the speaker thought there were subjects of great importance to the people of Virginia that might profit us much if we would discuss them, but he did not propose to do so to-night. He had stated in the printed hand-bill circulated to-day, which no doubt many of those present had read, that he was one of the most active opponents of the change effected in the city charter. There were some gentlemen who did not understand by the hand-bill that he was at this present time opposed to the change. He desired to say that he is now as much opposed as he was when the change was made. He was free to say there were certain officers he would still leave in the power of the City Council to elect, and with this declaration he hoped everyone would understand his position on the subject.

He would speak to his Irish fellow-citizens, and say to them he had been informed that he would not get a single Irish vote in the city of Alexandria, but he did not believe the assertion. The reason assigned for this feeling among those friends was that Mr. Nash had failed to be elected Superintendent of Gas, and the whole cause of that failure had fallen upon the speaker's head. No person but the speaker knew how he had voted upon that occasion, but he would now publicly announce that he voted for Mr. Jacob R. Curry, and a part of the reason for that vote was the base and treacherous conduct of M. H. Nash. [Applause.] Every drop of blood that coursed through his veins is Irish, but he is as good a Virginian as anyone on Virginia soil, and among the first impressions received from the lips of his mother (for he had been deprived of the counsel of his father in his early youth) were abhorrence and detestation for treachery and baseness. He presumed he understood something of the Irish character, and he would say that one of its most prominent features is hatred to deception and treachery in every form, and if there was one sentiment in his nature stronger than another it was that. To illustrate the baseness of M. H. Nash he would detail some of the incidents relating to the election for members of the present City Council. Mr. Nash and himself are now and have been superintendents of the Conservative organization for the first ward. At the ward meeting to nominate candidates for the City Council he exerted his every energy to defeat the speaker for that position, which he had a perfect right to do, and for which the speaker entertained no ill-will against him. On the day of the election, when passing to the polls, a particular friend of the speaker's handed him (Nash) a ticket containing the names of the regular nominees, of which the speaker was one, and Mr. Nash, who the friend saw him deposit the ballot, which the friend declined to do, but informed another friend of the speaker's that Mr. Nash had voted the ticket, having seen him go to the window and insert his arm as if in the act of voting. Later in the day Mr. Nash approached the polls again and voted. The second friend remarked to him, "Mike, you voted before," and at the same time noticed the ticket in the hand of the commissioner of election which had been received from Nash was different in appearance from the regular ticket, and the difference was easily discernable. Was not the trick in the first instance base? Was not the act in the second instance treachery in the extreme? Could any honest man stand up and call to denounce such baseness? If, with this knowledge, he found an Irishman who would denounce him (the speaker) for declining to support Mr. Nash, then he has totally misapprehended the true traits of the Irish character. For himself, he wished to be understood as holding Mr. Nash up to the public scorn. He did not fear that he would lose the vote of any Irishmen after this exposure of Mr. Nash's baseness. Why should he (the speaker) be held responsible for the defeat of all the other candidates whose election depended on the City Council? He had been held responsible for the defeat of every man who had applied to the City Council for position and been defeated, and in many instances he who had been denounced and threatened by some who act as if he had the power of casting thirteen votes, though he had never made the slightest effort to defeat any candidate in the City Council; and there was no member in the Council who exerted less influence among the members than himself.

The speaker said he had been accused by those with whom he differed with stubbornness and mulishness, but they always laid claim to the greatest liberality and the most yielding dispositions; but he was proud to assert that in all the controversies of a public character in which he had been engaged, when they had been submitted to the Court he had been in every instance sustained. When he took possession of the Mayor's office in 1870 the Sunday law was then in force, and he then gave his opinion that the law was not worth the paper it was written upon, and when the question was taken into the Courts after he had retired from office the law was then declared a nullity. As an evidence of his consistency and firmness he referred to the attempt of Major Hambrick to obtain the release of two negro women whom he had committed to the work house in 1866, when he was first elected Mayor. The Freedmen's Bureau was in full force, and the Provost Judge, Major Hambrick was a power in our midst. This officer had invoked every power and influence in the city of Washington to accomplish his purpose, and finally informed the speaker that he could obtain an order from Gen. Auger for their release. The speaker informed the officer that he did not know Gen. A. Major Hambrick said Gen. A. was commander of this post. The speaker said, in reply, that he (the Mayor) was commander of Alexandria; that the people had elected him Mayor, and he would exert that power. [Applause.] Upon an intimation that Gen. Auger would incarcerate the Corporation authorities in the Slave Pen, the speaker had replied that he might take his frail body and subject him to imprisonment, but there was one thing, his whole government could not do, they could not conquer the will of Hugh Latham. [Applause.] The speaker was unable to expend money in securing his election, but he felt that no man had warmer or more devoted friends, and he regretted that he had a few bitter opponents, though he had done nothing to deserve their opposition. He then asserted his devotion to party organization and his determined efforts to keep it intact, and cited the fact of his strenuous and successful exertions in electing to the City Council one of his most persistent opponents at a time when he had no personal interest in the election. Without his efforts this candidate would have been defeated. He then appealed to the assembly to return him as one of the November pledging his earnest attention to the interests of his constituency. He alluded to the fact that he was partial.

strumental in defeating the project to remove the toll gate on the Washington road to a point south of the old factory road, and he considered he had claims to the suffrages of the people of Alexandria county. He thanked the audience for their patient attention and concluded by inviting any of the other candidates to address the meeting. None of them appearing, the meeting dispersed.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.—The called meeting of the Board of Aldermen, held last night, was the shortest one held by that Board for many a night—to the great delight of the clerk, reporters, and messenger, and, apparently, of the five members present.

A few moments after eight o'clock, the appointed time, the members having taken their seats and one or two spectators being without the bar, the President called the Board to order, and stated that the meeting had been called for the purpose of completing the unfinished business of the last meeting, and that the last meeting had adjourned pending the consideration of Mr. Smoot's motion to reconsider the vote by which the resolution to rear up a portion of the railroad track on St. Asaph street had been lost, which motion he would put.

The motion was then taken and carried unanimously.

Mr. McKeezie then moved that the action of the Common Council in adopting the resolution be concurred in, and his motion was also carried unanimously, and

Mr. Neale moving to adjourn, the Board did immediately adjourn, after a session of five minutes.

Mr. Downham appeared just as the other members were leaving the chamber, and a few minutes later Dr. Johnson was met on the corner of the street below on his way there, and upon being informed of the action of the Board and its adjournment, asked if they had a quorum, and saying "that's the way they legislate," proceeded on towards the Market square, where ex-Mayor Latham was speaking.

The resolution, which has now been adopted by both boards, and is consequently effective, is as follows:

Whereas the Alexandria and Washington Railroad Company is occupying with its tracks St. Asaph street, from Princess to King street; and whereas the City Council of Alexandria has never authorized such occupation by the said Alexandria and Washington Railroad Company; therefore be it Resolved by the City Council of Alexandria, That the Mayor forthwith notify and require the said company to remove their tracks from so much of St. Asaph street as lies between King and Princess streets, and upon their failing for thirty days to obey the said notice and requirement, that then and in that event the Mayor shall proceed without delay to remove the same.

THE PRIMARY ELECTION.—The primary election in progress in this city, to-day, has evoked but little interest, and the excitement usually attendant upon such an event is altogether lacking. There is every probability that not more than one half of the thirteen hundred Conservative votes polled for Mayor Kemper will be cast. At the polls the canvassers for the respective candidates—they being seven in number—actively canvassed each particular voter with printed tickets, presenting a variety of combinations known only to the ingenuity of candidates and the science of politics. As the voter approaches the polls these canvassers, bearing in mind the idea that first impressions are generally the most lasting, make an indiscriminate rush towards the "sovereign," each eager to be the first to impress upon his chaotic mind the superior merits of his particular candidate, and before the ballotster arrives at the ballot box he has changed his preferences successively from one candidate to the other, and finally in sheer desperation votes for the individual who was uppermost in his mind before approaching the polls. One other feature of the election up to the time this notice was written has been the absence of intimidation from the polls, although all the bar rooms in the city have been doing business as usual. The lack of interest manifested may be accounted for in the fact of the frequent recurrence of elections, which dissipates the novelty of the exercise of the elective franchise. At three o'clock this afternoon the number of votes polled in the several wards was as follows: First Ward, 175; Second Ward, 140; Third Ward, 250; Fourth Ward, 90; of which it was impossible to tell how much each candidate had received, for, as already stated, the voting was conducted by ballot.

POLICE REPORT.—There were no cases before the Mayor this morning. A colored man named Ben. Blauheim, charged with riotous conduct across the canal locks, some time ago, was arrested yesterday, by a colored constable and taken before Justice Franklin, also colored, by whom he was discharged, upon the payment of costs.

Warrants were issued by Justice Padgett for the arrest of a number of young men charged with stealing a gold ring named Schmidt, but the costs having been paid the warrants were withdrawn.

C. & O. CANAL.—Rock Creek, the Georgetown outlet of the C. & O. Canal, was again obstructed this morning in consequence of the late rains, and all boats for this city had to come via the Alexandria canal. A slight break was discovered in the Georgetown break, near the mills, on Sunday evening last, and though workmen are still making repairs, the water has been let on and navigation is unobstructed.

FAREWELL TOUR.—Prof. Wyman, who is making his farewell tour, closed his engagement in this city, at Sarepta Hall, last night. Time has left its marks upon the Professor's voice and movements, and, though still an expert juggler and good ventriloquist, he does not excel in those accomplishments as he did when he attracted large audiences here, twenty-five years ago.

TEMPERANCE LECTURE.—Mr. T. N. Ram say lectured last night in the room of the Young Men's Christian Association upon the Evils of Intemperance to a small but appreciative audience. He will leave here to-morrow for Richmond, lecturing on the route at Fairfax Court House on the 26th inst., Clifton on the 27th, and Manassas the 28th.

BAILED.—Deputy U. S. Marshal I. C. O'Neal, returned yesterday, from Loudoun county, having in charge a man named H. Zekiah Garner, who had been arrested for selling liquor at the camp meeting without license. His prisoner was taken before U. S. Commissioner Fowler, and bailed for his appearance at the next term of the U. S. District Court.

ROBBERY.—Mrs. Steves, station agent of the W. & O. R. R., at Falls Church, was robbed of thirty odd dollars, last Sunday night, by a colored man, who stole the money from the till in the store room. The thief has been arrested in Georgetown and part of the money recovered.

INCORRECT RUMOR.—The numerous friends of Mr. D. G. Meade will be glad to learn that the reported severe accident to some of his family was so much exaggerated as to be almost entirely incorrect. The horses attached to the carriage did run away, but none of the injuries received were serious.

EXCURSION.—Notwithstanding the unfavorable appearance of the weather last night the excursion of the officers of the steamer Mary Washington to Glymont took place. A tolerably large company was on board the steamer, but few of whom, however, were from this city.

ALMOST DROWNED.—Mr. Motter, who lives on the Hayfield estate, a few miles below the city, in attempting to cross Cameron Run yesterday, during the prevailing high water, only escaped with his life by cutting his horse loose and swimming out, leaving the wagon in the water behind him.

THE WEATHER.—The weather to-day, though partially cloudy, has been a vast improvement upon that of the preceding few days, and has been comparatively enjoyed. The temperature has not been up to summer heat, but politics ran high and supplied the desired caloric.

FELL OVERBOARD.—An unknown sailor, while attempting to board the schooner Hattie E. Sampson, lying at Smoot's wharf, yesterday afternoon, fell into the dock, but being a good swimmer, rescued himself without much difficulty.

LOCAL BRIEVITIES.

We learn from the Culpeper Times that the young men of Culpeper C. H. and county are uniting their energies on a grand picnic, (which will undoubtedly be the affair of the season,) to be given on the 27th inst. A number of persons from Alexandria are expected.

A valuable dog belonging to Dr. Klipstien, was nearly cut in two last Sunday night by a trespasser, upon the Doctor's premises, in his successful efforts to get away from him without being detected.

A valuable looking cow belonging to Mr. J. L. Adams of Fauquier county, was run over and killed by a passing locomotive on the Henry street track this morning.

Robert G. Nevitt, esq., registrar of the Vestry of Pohick, is diligently engaged in endeavoring to raise funds with which to put that Church in good condition.

The Alexandria brass band left for Warrenton this morning to furnish the music for the grand ball to be given there to-night.

The fish berches in the market square will be rented on Friday next.

The peculiar finish of the Elmwood collar makes it thoroughly perspiration proof. All first class furnishing stores sell them.

If your bowels are constive take a dose of Dr. Bull's Vegetable Pills; we know of no better medicine.
